

AT WORK AGAIN.

THE GOSSIP AND CHAT OF THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

The General Discontent With Kiefer and His Manipulation—The Tariff Elephant Demanding Attention—How the Parties Will Split Upon the Trade Question.

WASHINGTON, January 6.—[Special Correspondence.]—After the holidays, congress is here once more, though the attendance yesterday was rather thin in both houses. Naturally members are reluctant to leave the comforts of home for the routine life of Washington.

A general impression exists that this will be one of the longest and most interesting sessions ever known. In the brief time already spent enough issues have either been made or hinted at to carry the work a long way ahead. In a few days real work will begin and the great mass of material already accumulated will be found the mere nucleus of what is to come.

Kiefer's patent prepared committees will be used for all they are worth, and it is hard to overestimate their value. The business of the house is largely controlled by the committees. The absolute power of appointment vested in the speaker enables him to promote or impede any species of legislation that may meet his approval or his censure.

It was expected that the possession of such high functions would impose upon every speaker a due sense of responsibility for their proper exercise. But Kiefer seems to have used them as the attributes of his station to be used at his own sweet will.

He has done more to degrade the dignity of his office than any man who ever held it. His career thus far has been a valuable contribution to the history of that unscrupulous partisan principle which has been growing in American politics ever since the government has been in the hands of the republicans.

Some of the severest censure of Kiefer has come from his own party. Mr. Orth could not contain his wounded feelings. He made some plain remarks in the house yesterday to show that the speaker had been very unjust and to declare his intention to offer a bill taking from the chair the appointment of the committees and conferring that power on the house.

It is thought such a bill will gain large support from both sides. It may be that we are now beholding the last Kiefer that will be possible in America. At least there is a faint ray of hope.

Mr. Kelly has his hands full. He has long desired the lead of the ways and means committee. Now that he has it what is he going to do with it? If he could gratify his own desires he would leave the tariff in the hands of the committee. But he is a shrewd man and sees that there must be reform. Wisely, he has concluded that it is better to direct this force than to let it be directed by others, and he tells the advocates of reform in both parties that he is now engaged in preparing a bill which will set the matter right.

This promise must suspend public judgment for the time being. There is already legislation on the question without the aid of the committee. But there is already an expectation that Kelly's promised gift will come in the shape of a Trojan horse, and before it is accepted there will be a thorough inspection of its "true inwardness." The men who want real reforms in the tariff are strong and hopeful.

But they do not expect much aid from the quarter in which it is now promised. A square vote on the tariff would show some queer affiliations. Kelly don't enthrone for protection more than does Ellis, of Louisiana, or Sam Randall. In the Senate Morrill cannot put his foot too far in that direction to find Butler, of South Carolina, by his side.

These are the strongest indications of dissolution in present party lines, for these are changes that affect the very basis of the parties. That wild and chaotic scheme of disrupting the democratic party by some how fusing the discontent in every southern state can never accomplish as much as the fact seems likely to bring about. The recent reports of the post-office department show what a valuable officer was Mr. James. Expenses have been cut down marvellously and the department is actually about on self-supporting basis.

When Arthur lost the man who did more practical good than the other advisors combined. His place will be poorly supplied by Howe, for conceding to him all the fairness and honesty of Junius he has not the business skill or the pushing energy of his predecessor.

The Republican has found that Mr. James really did not economize at all, but was desperately extravagant. He bought a thousand or two more street car tickets for the department than had been used during a like period in the previous administration. Such ridiculous stuff is frequent in a journal which has been throwing mud at James ever since he refused to come under Conkling's lash. When he got rid of Brady and began to uproot the miserable star route frauds he touched Gorman and the republicans in tender places. Brady and Dorsey are twin idols in that camp.

W. D. Howells in the Atlantic.

The Irish case which presently came in, was a question of assault and battery between Mrs. O'Hara and Mrs. MacManis; it had finally to be dismissed, after much testimony to the guilt and peaceable character of both parties. A dozen or more witnesses were called, principally young girls who had come in their best, and with whom one could fancy this an occasion of present satisfying excitement and future celebrity. The witnesses were generally more interesting than the parties. I have tried to think of the case as a true reporter should, but I would not have my reader suppose that I did not feel the essential cruelty of an exhibition that tore its poor girls from all that should shame and its mask from all that lying, cowering guilt, or did not suspect how it must harden and deprave those whom it daily entertained.

This procession of misdeeds, passing under their eyes day after day, must leave a miasm of mortal decay behind it, which no prison or work-house can hereafter cure. We all know that the genius of our law is publicity; but it may not be as profitable as kept private as hangings, the popular attendance in which was supposed to be a bulwark of religion and morality.

Not that there was any available brutality, or even indecency, in the conduct of the trials that I saw. A spade was necessarily called a spade; but it seemed to me that with all the waste of time and foreign alloy the old Puritan seriousness was making a goodly show here, and subduing the tone of the proclivity to a grave decency consonant with the inquiries of justice. For it was really justice that was administered, so far as I could see; and justice that was by no means blind, but very open-eyed and keen-sighted. The causes were decided by one man, from evidence usually extracted out of writhing reluctance or abysmal stupidity, and the judgment must be formed and the sentence given where the magistrate sat, amid the confusion of the crowded room. Yet, except in the case of my poor thief, I did not see him hesitate and I did not doubt his wisdom—I am far from pronouncing his sentence unjust even in that case. His decisions seemed to me the result of most patient and wonderful rapid cogitation, and in dealing with the witnesses he never lost his temper amid densities or dullness which it is quite impossible to do more than indicate. If it were necessary, for example, to establish the fact that a handkerchief was white, it was done without some such colloquy as this:

"Was it a white handkerchief?"

"Yes, it was."

"Was it white, sor?"

"Yes, was it white?"

"Was it white, sor?"

"The handkerchief—was the handkerchief white?"

"The handkerchief you just mentioned; the handkerchief the defendant dropped."

"I didn't see it, sor."

"Didn't see the handkerchief?"

"Didn't see him drop it, sor."

"Well, did you see the handkerchief?"

"The handkerchief, sor? Oh, yes, sor; I saw it—I saw the handkerchief."

"It was, sor."

A boy, who complained of another for assaulting him, said that he knocked him down.

"How did he knock you down?" asked the judge.

"Did he knock you down with his fist or his open hand?"

"Yes, sor."

"Put his arms around me and knocked me down."

"Then he didn't knock you down. He threw you down."

"Yes, sor. He didn't throw me down. Put his arms round me and knocked me down."

It would be impossible to caricature these things, or to exaggerate the charitable long-suffering that dwell with such cases. Sometimes, as if in mere despair, the judge called the parties to him and questioned them privately, after which the case seemed to be settled without further trial.

I have spoken of the theatrical illusion which the proceedings of the court produced, but it often seemed to me also like a school where bad boys and girls were brought for punishment. They were, indeed, like children, those poor offenders, and had a sort of innocent simplicity in their wickedness, as good people have in their goodness.

TO SIS.

A Delightful Homily With a Broad Application.

Come here, Sis, and sit down beside me, and let me give you a little talking to. That is right. Sit clear at the other end of the sofa. It makes more room for my goat and corns, besides being a good habit for a young lady to be addicted to. Always pander to this habit, and you will find yourself walking through green meadows and beside the still waters of respect. You may be walking alone, to be sure, but will have fewer lawn dresses to do up on Monday morning. I wish to speak to you of vanity. It may be you have noticed the careworn look upon her face lately. Of course, it has not been brought there by any act of yours, still it is your duty to chase it away. I don't mean for you to run and shake your skirts and tell it to "shoo," as you would a hen, nor do I expect you to get on the other side of the fence and throw old oyster cans and pieces of barrel staves at it, as you did at the cow yesterday. But I want you to get up to-morrow morning and get breakfast, and when your mother comes down and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her on the forehead. If she does not like it, let her know that you are not a child, and that you are a woman. If she does not like it, let her know that you are not a child, and that you are a woman. If she does not like it, let her know that you are not a child, and that you are a woman.

These are the strongest indications of dissolution in present party lines, for these are changes that affect the very basis of the parties. That wild and chaotic scheme of disrupting the democratic party by some how fusing the discontent in every southern state can never accomplish as much as the fact seems likely to bring about. It would be impossible to caricature these things, or to exaggerate the charitable long-suffering that dwell with such cases. Sometimes, as if in mere despair, the judge called the parties to him and questioned them privately, after which the case seemed to be settled without further trial.

I have spoken of the theatrical illusion which the proceedings of the court produced, but it often seemed to me also like a school where bad boys and girls were brought for punishment. They were, indeed, like children, those poor offenders, and had a sort of innocent simplicity in their wickedness, as good people have in their goodness.

"But have these common ailments anything to do with the fearful Bright's disease which took so firm a hold on you?"

"Anything? Why, they are the sure indications of the first stages of that dreadful malady. The fact is, few people know or realize what ails them, and I am sorry to say that too few physicians do either."

"That is a strange statement, doctor."

"But it is a true one. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. We have been clipping off the twigs when we should strike at the root. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approaching malady, and we do not treat the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half of the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it, doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of so-called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in reality it is Bright's disease in some of its many forms. A Hydro-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, leucosthia, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints, which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured, as I was, by the timely use of the same remedy—Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter, and I think I am helping others to do so. Do you not think it dangerous also? Why, there are no end of truths bearing on this subject. If you want to know more about it go and see Mr. Warner himself. He is sick the same as I, and is the healthiest man in the hospital. He has made a study of this subject and can give you more facts than I can. Go, too, and see Dr. Lattimore, the chemist, at the University. If you want facts there are any quantity of them showing the alarming increase of Bright's disease, its simple and deceptive symptoms, and that there is but one way by which it can be escaped."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Warner at his establishment on Exchange street. At first Mr. Warner was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about the alarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, but it is not by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years its growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven and others. This is terrible, and a great deal more than that of any other known complaint. It must be plain to every one that something must be done to check this increase or there is no knowing where it may end."

"Do you think, doctor, that people are afflicted with it to-day who do not realize it, Mr. Warner?"

"Hundreds of thousands. I have a striking example of this truth which has just come to my notice. A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the results when the indications of this terrible malady were in order to draw the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids he had provided a vial of the contents of which were drawn from his own kidney. He was suddenly seized with a violent pain in his back, and he fell back in a state of perfect health. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color turned command both left him, and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys, and in less than a year he was dead.'"

"You believe then that it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is afflicted with it?"

"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people suffer from it long. Of course, if the disease is the first symptom. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one. I know what I am talking about, for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it. It is a very wonderful, is it not?"

"A very prominent case, but no more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured?"

"I know it can. I know it from the experience of hundreds of prominent persons who were given up to die by both physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfit for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When I was in the city I found it was kidney difficulty. I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman who said, 'I have cured a man like you, and I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortunately secured and used the remedy known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.'"

"And this caused you to manufacture it?"

"No, it caused me to investigate. I went to the principal cities with Dr. Craig, the discoverer, and saw the physicians prescribing and using it. I saw that Dr. Craig was unable, with his facilities, to supply the medicine to thousands who wanted it. I therefore determined, as a duty to humanity and the suffering, to bring it within their reach, and now it is known in every part of America, is sold in every drug store, and has become a household necessity."

The reporter felt Mr. Warner, much impressed with the earnestness and sincerity of his statements, and next paid a visit to Dr. S. A. Lattimore, at his residence on Prince street. Dr. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the state board of health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded him.

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner, some three years ago, doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance in the urine."

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir. I did not think it possible. It was seldom, indeed, that so pronounced a case had, up to that time, ever been cured."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it, and upon critical examination find it entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused, and to meet the protestations which have been made. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make cannot be a moment be doubted. They conclusively show that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, alarmingly increasing and that it can be cured.

The Chickering Prize Piano.

Waco, Texas, December 31.—Uncle Lindsay Powell, Dear Sir: I have this minute received your surprising telegram that I have drawn the $1,000 Chickering piano exhibited at the International cotton exposition. As good fortune seldom ever comes in my way, I need not tell you I am pleased. When I consider that I have succeeded, with over twenty-five thousand chances against me, I take the extreme good luck as an evidence that my fortune in the future is to be changed for the better. I am particularly fond of piano music and think the only thing necessary now to complete my happiness is a lovely wife of a musical turn to help me enjoy the prize. You know the ladies all love music, and with a thousand-dollar piano to boot, I can approach them with more confidence of success than I ever could before. And when the matrimonial tie is made, my wife shall play while I will sing, and the first song executed on that splendid instrument shall be dedicated to the great Chickering company, who doubtless make the best piano in the world. As I am rather too nervous now to write you in full, I will close this with three round cheers for General Kimball and the great southern cotton exposition, that has done so much for the south. Your happy friend, FRANK POWELL.

York, Pennsylvania, Daily.

Our fellow townsman, Mr. Adam Croner, East College avenue, York, Pennsylvania, states the following: I had an attack of rheumatism so severe that I was unable to move unless by assistance. After using different remedies I purchased a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, which gave me great relief and after using the third bottle, I was able to do my work.

International Cotton Exposition.

Office of the Director General, Atlanta, Ga., December 31, 1891.

To whom it may Concern:

I take pleasure in certifying that the Type-Writer upon which this letter is written, manufactured by Remington, is the best in the world. It has been in constant use in my office for the past four months. It has been operated by an expert, who has, I think, without doubt, accomplished by its use work that would have otherwise required the services of at least three clerks. It has not been out of repair or given the slightest trouble. Therefore I commend it to the use of any person doing a large correspondence.

H. I. KIMBALL, Director General.

Respectfully,

REMINGTON TYPE-WRITER.

A very ingenious and perfect machine, a substitute for the pen, very simple, compact, and of easy manipulation. We recommend the highest award.

A. C. BEUCE, JOHN MOORE, Judges.

J. R. LEWIS, Secretary pro tem.

H. I. KIMBALL, Director General.

Remington Arms—Highest award all world's exhibitions. Principal prize in leading rifle matches. Remington Type-Writer—Highest award Atlanta exposition. Remington Sewing Machine—Highest award only award at Cincinnati exposition, 1881, award Atlanta exposition.

Mr. A. F. Coledge, No. 65 Whitehall street, is the sole agent for the sale of the Type-Writer in Atlanta.

Per H. I. KIMBALL.

Buyers for Oranges! Oranges! At Dickey, Fain & Co.'s. For fresh, sweet Florida Oranges cheaper than the cheapest. 555 Jan 8-11.

Only medal awarded on sewing machines at cotton exposition was to the American Sewing Machine Company. Office Kimball House Atlanta, Ga. 121 Jan 8-11.

American Sewing Machine Co. received a gold medal at cotton exposition. 121 Jan 8-11.

Married, at the residence of the bride, by the Rev. H. C. Christian, Mr. Thomas Stahl, of Greenville, S. C., to Miss Kate Foster, of this city, January 5. The happy couple left on the 2 p. m. train for their future home in Greenville, S. C.

In the Real Estate Line.

Mr. R. J. Griffin, who is so well and favorably known in the business circles of Atlanta, has associated himself with Mr. E. M. Roberts, in the purchase and sale of real estate.

Mr. Griffin's experience peculiarly fits him for his new undertaking. For several years he has been one of the real estate assessors in Atlanta, and he is in this way, familiar with every part of the city, and the values at which property should be held. He has invested heavily in real estate himself. He is thoroughly honest, capable, wide-awake, and will carefully watch the interests of his customers. His partner, Mr. Roberts, who has a stock of real estate in the business, is well known as a gentleman of great push and energy.

Notice.

I wish to state to the public that I have again taken possession of the Cannon house and will take boarders at four, five and six dollars per week. 455 Jan 8-11.

Respectfully, Mrs. PETER.

New Code of Georgia.

In another column will be found a statement of Messrs. Hill, Lester and Rowell, compilers of the new code, concerning its publication and a notice of Messrs. Jas. P. Harrison & Co., publishers, in which they announce their intention to complete the work so soon as possible, and call upon members of the legal profession who desire the book to subscribe at once.

It seems to us that no progressive lawyer will entertain the thought of practicing his profession in Georgia without the latest code, and as the number published will not exceed the number subscribed for, it is important that all who want the code should subscribe at once. The work is so costly that the publishers cannot afford the expense of publishing extra copies. As the time is short within which the code must be completed, it is necessary that the number to be published should be determined, and in accordance with the orders received. We therefore advise all who desire the code to send up their orders at once, so they may cause them to be disappointed. The edition being limited by the number of subscribers, of course such as are not on the list will not be supplied.

Ladies who wish to get their spring white goods ready will find it much to their advantage to buy embroideries and trimmings at M. Rich & Bro. They have a large stock and will close them out cheap. 417 Jan 8-11.

Notice to Contractors and Builders.

We beg leave to state that we have the sole agency of the celebrated Catosa lime, and offer special inducements to contractors and builders who wish to buy in large quantities. Full stock always on hand. Write or call on us, W. S. Wilson & Bro., office S. S. Broad, yard 7 Spring on W. A. & R. R. 399 Jan 8-11.

Notice.

We have moved our coal and lumber office from 10 N. Broad to 15 South Broad street, on west side of the street. W. S. Wilson & Bro. Jan 8-11.

To the Public.

Below we publish a letter just received from a gentleman belonging to one of the first families in the state—well known in middle Georgia. It speaks for itself.

We are not at liberty to publish his name, but are authorized to show his letter to any one suffering with the same complaint, and give them a general history of his case.

We would say that in all our experience we have never known or heard of a more remarkable case—each member of our company knew the gentleman well and considered his case hopeless. Yours truly,

The Swift Specific Co. Atlanta, Ga., January 2, 1892.

December 29, 1891.

Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Gents: I have delayed thus long in writing because I wanted to make "assurance doubly sure" in the trial of S. S. S. in my own case. And am, indeed, most happy to report that it has entirely eradicated every symptom of the disease from my system. Had I followed the advice of Tom Swift in years gone by it would have saved me ten long years of intense suffering. I have not the least return of the disease, and can fully and truly recommend it to all suffering from the source, and especially to the physicians in Macon, who knew my condition, and when I can positively assure them that it has not only relieved me of pain, but has entirely removed every symptom of the disease from my system, it ought to convince even them of its infallible qualities.

I do not care to have my name published, but you are at liberty to show my letter to those who formerly knew of my condition especially to Dr. M., who is so celebrated with his 555 and 471. Let him take the worst case he can find and he will be convinced against his orthodox principles. You can also call the attention of Drs. F., B., H., and H., to my letter, all of whom knew of my lamentable condition.

It is a shame that human kind should suffer from the prejudices of physicians to anything not laid down in the text books.

Let me assure you of my gratitude, and believe me ever, yours truly.
